Crude Oil Scenario:

Oil prices are on track for their biggest annual percentage gain since 2009 on the back of an agreement struck between OPEC and non-OPEC countries to cut crude production output.

Brent futures have risen about 53 percent this year while WTI futures have climbed around 46 percent.U.S. benchmark West Texas intermediate (WTI) CLc1 crude futures were up 15 cents or 0.3 percent at $53.92 at 0408 GMT. Brent front-month March crude oil futures LCOc1 were 14 cents a barrel or 0.3 percent higher at $56.99.

Still, the rise in crude stocks in the EIA data was significantly smaller than in Wednesday's American Petroleum Institute (API) data that indicated a 4.2 million barrel build in U.S. crude oil stocks in the same period.
